

Robert Preston Brown

Robert began his legal career at Smith Gambrell in Atlanta, GA, where his practice focused on complex construction litigation/arbitration across the United States and internationally, while he also helped manage the firm by serving on the firm's five-person Executive Committee. After fourteen years at Smith Gambrell, he moved in-house to serve as Vice President, Litigation for The Shaw Group Inc., where he managed a "portfolio" of claims that often exceeded a billion dollars and later became the company's Deputy General Counsel. He further broadened his duties when Shaw tasked him to serve as the company's Legal Counsel for the multi-billion-dollar Vogtle nuclear power project, where he worked on the project site. He currently serves as General Counsel for McKenney's, Inc., where he is also a business partner in the company. Additionally, he is an arbitrator with the American Arbitration Association and a Registered Mediator with the State of Georgia.
